GLOBAL SUMMIT OF WOMEN

Santiago, Chile
May 14-16, 2009

Chile will host the 2009 Global Summit of Women, which brings together women leaders in business and government from across the globe for three days of networking, skills-building and information sharing from May 14-16 in Santiago. With its reputation as an exciting, fact-filled, hands-on gathering of high caliber participants that has earned the nickname "Davos for Women," the 2009 Summit continues its focus on accelerating women's economic development to access the Chilean, Latin American and Caribbean markets, to form new business alliances and to share best practices.

The 2009 Summit features include:

- Pre-Summit Roundtable for Women Government Ministers to dialogue with corporate leaders on best practices in private/public partnerships for advancing women's economic growth;
- Plenary sessions which cover business trends regionally and globally, as well as impart practical strategies developed in different parts of the world;
- Skills building sessions in four tracks: Leadership Development, Entrepreneurial, Micro-enterprise, and Issues;
- Global Women's Leadership Award and the Chilean Women's Leadership Award that will be bestowed upon select women leaders; and
- Ample networking opportunities at breakfasts, lunches, receptions, and throughout the event.

What the Summit Offers:

- A window into the Chilean, Latin American and Caribbean economies
- Insight into the women in this region as consumers and business leaders
- Featured 'best practice' partnerships between business and government to advance women and to promote 'green' initiatives
- And numerous sessions to help 'grow' your leadership skills, your business, your network.

"The Global Summit of Women was truly amazing! Women leaders from business, politics, and society exchanging views, connecting, and working toward a better world" —

Mirella Visser, President, European Women's Professional Network (The Netherlands)
